Rationale for EntreCoVEs

1

- Developing Entrepreneurial Spirit: more relevance and efficiency

2

- CoVEs Effectively support socio-economic development

3

- CoVEs help citizens' employability: employees, self-employed, entrepreneurs

Three main tools

- Conceptual framework

- Self-assessment toolkit

- Ecosystem engagement toolkit

The Self-assessment Tool

Step 1. Team formation

Key stakeholders must be engaged in the process. Each CoVE should establish an internal team that will be engaged in the project. Members of this team can include representatives from the following groups:

- Management team;
- Teaching staff;
- Learners;
- Administrative staff.

Step 2. Meeting to discuss and complete the reflection tool

Before the meeting, the team members must have access to key documents that need to be reviewed to facilitate the discussions and areas of improvement.

Step 3. Sharing with stakeholders in the ecosystem – Optional

Bilateral/multilateral exchanges can be planned to discuss the reflection and finalise the areas of improvement with key stakeholders in the ecosystem. The aim is to help CoVEs see their state/progress through the eyes of their main partners.

The Self-assessment Tool

Organisational Practices	Teaching and Learning Processes
There is a strategy where entrepreneurial objectives and activities are clearly defined.	The EntreComp competencies are integrated across the curricula .
The leadership team is supportive of innovation and entrepreneurial activity.	Teaching and learning are based on real-world, collaborative, project-based , and authentic learning.
Staff are recognised and rewarded for their entrepreneurial competences, activities, and excellence in teaching and service.	Entrepreneurial activities and actions are encouraged that address the Sustainable Development Goals .
There is strong internal monitoring and communication of entrepreneurial vision and actions.	Provides opportunities to learners to practice their entrepreneurial competences (e.g., applied projects, entrepreneurship competitions, etc).
There is a digital strategy linked to entrepreneurial activities and vision.	Career guidance and advice is offered to address entrepreneurial activities.
The CoVE is entrepreneurial in generating revenue from the diversity of sources
